The vignoble

Welcome to a small vineyard in the South of France where some of the finest vines in the world bask in the warm summer sun. Our friends have tended this vineyard for 5 years now and brought it back to it's natural roots. The vineyard is now certified organic and produces distinctive wines of exceptional mineral quality. A recent gold medal in the organic wine category is proof of this fact. Nestled in a hamlet between Bordeaux, St. Emilion, and Bergerac, you will be surrounded by vines and walking distance to a small village. Each apartment includes a terrace where you can enjoy evening meals looking out over the valley filled with vineyards, forests, and church steeples. From this idyllic setting, you will follow the flow of the Dordogne river and enjoy sunsets and fireworks, popular during the holiday season. The vignoble is equipped with two separate spacious apartments with all the modern amenities. Each suite has two sleeping areas, large kitchen, bathroom(s), living room and private decks with views over the valley. The suites are in separate buildings, one adjacent to the landowners and one adjacent to a wine tasting area. Parking is available on the grounds as are laundry facilities. The thick original walls, some dating from 1671, provide a cool respite from the hot summer days. You can also drive down to the river and enjoy a swim or walk over to the new pool with a self cleaning robot.

About the Area

La Dordogne is a département in south-west France. The départment is located in the region of Aquitaine, between the Loire Valley and the Pyrenees mountains named after the great Dordogne river that runs through it. It roughly corresponds with the ancient county of Périgord. In addition to its castles, chateaux, churches, bastides and cave fortresses, the Périgord region has preserved from centuries past, a number of wonderful villages which still have their market halls, dovecotes, tories (stone huts), churches, abbeys and castles. Saint-Léon-sur-Vézère, Connezac, Saint-Jean-de-Côle, La Roque-Gageac and many others are real jewels of architecture. As for the old quarters of Périgueux or Bergerac, restored and developed into pedestrian areas, they have regained their former charm. A number of small towns, such as Brantôme, Issigeac, Eymet and Mareuil, have withstood the often brash changes of modern times. A special mention should be made in this respect to Sarlat and its Black Périgord area.

The Bordeaux metropolitan area, located one hour West, has a population of 1,105,000 and constitutes the sixth-largest urban area in France. It is the capital of the Aquitaine region, as well as the prefecture of the Gironde department. Its inhabitants are called Bordelais. Bordeaux is the world's major wine industry capital. It is home to the world's main wine fair, Vinexpo,[1] while the wine economy in the metro area moves 14.5 billion euros each year.[2] Bordeaux wine has been produced in the region since the 8th century. The historic part of the city is on the UNESCO World Heritage List as "an outstanding urban and architectural ensemble" of the 18th century.[3]

Getting There

After many years of travelling to Southern France, Lili recommends taking a direct flight from America to Paris followed by a high speed (TGV) train to the South of France, followed by a car rental from a large city. You can also rent a car directly from Paris, but we don't recommend driving in Paris - especially if you have jet lag.

You can also now take a direct flight from London (UK) to Bergerac. This is a great idea for those that don't want to rent a car as you are close enough to the vineyard to be picked up by your hosts!
